广东省高校外语教师教学发展示范中心邀请您参加2014年6月13-15日在广东省广州市广东外语外贸大学举办的首届广外-香港理工多元识读论坛。

在新媒介时代,信息技术的快速发展和语言文化的多元融合使得以语言为中心的传统识读教学难以满足多语言、多文化、多模态的社会需求。此次论坛的目的在于使高校外语教学能更好地适应时代的变化发展,提升外语教师在多媒体时代进行多元识读的能力,促进教学和科研水平的提升。具体详情如下:

一、参会人员

全国外语类教师

附件二:

专家介绍

1. Gunther Kress is Professor of Semiotics and Education at the Institute of Education, University of London. His interests are in communication and meaning (-making) in contemporary environments. His broad aims are to continue developing a social semiotic theory of multimodal communication; and, in that, to develop an apt theory of learning and apt means for the 'recognition' and 'valuation of learning'. Some books along the road are: Language as Ideology; Social Semiotics (both with Bob Hodge); Before Writing: rethinking the paths to literacy;

Reading Images: the grammar of graphic design; Multimodal Discourse: the modes and media of contemporary communication (both with Theo van Leeuwen); Literacy in the new media age; Multimodality: a social semiotic approach to contemporary communication.

2. Len Unsworth is Professor in English and Literacies Education at the Australian Catholic University in Sydney, Australia. Len's research is in primary and secondary school English and multiliteracies education. His book publications include Teaching Multiliteracies Across the Curriculum (Open University Press) and [with Angela Thomas, Alyson Simpson and Jenny Asha] Teaching children's literature with Information and Communication Technologies (McGraw-Hill/Open University Press 2005), e-literature for children and classroom literacy learning (Routledge, 2006), New Literacies and the English Curriculum (Continuum, 2008), Multimodal Semiotics (Continuum, 2008) and, with Clare Painter and Jim Martin, Reading Visual Narratives (Equinox, 2013).

3. Francis Robert Low is Teaching fellow at the Department of English, the Hong Kong Polytechnic University. His area of study and research is Systemic Functional Linguistics (SFL) and specialized in Multimodality and Multisemiotics. As an active member of the PolySystemic Research Group, a Systemic Functional Linguistic working group with a regional focus in the Pearl River Delta, China and Southeast Asia, which has extended as an international research network. Francis Low devotes in research on Systemic Functional Linguistics and Multimodal

Discourse Analysis in general. His main contribution in recent years are 'text+' which is a model for multi-semiotic resources integration in meaning making, quantification of images, natural language processes in machine, image theory development and image typology influenced by Matthiessen's work. Other research interest are time and space in comics, image archiving, image analysis software for teaching and research, image studies and interdisciplinary curriculum such as legal discourse analysis, classroom discourse, images in public health education, images in adverts, business websites, multi-literacy etc.

4. 陈瑜敏 received her PhD degree in linguistics from the University of Sydney (cotutelle with Sun Yat-sen University), and is currently Associate Professor in the School of Foreign Languages, Sun Yat-sen University. Her research interests include functional linguistics, social semiotics and discourse analysis. She is currently undertaking a research project granted by Ministry of Education of PRC on the multimodal construction of interpersonal meaning in Chinese and English educational settings. Her recent publications include research articles in the journals Visual Communication and Linguistics and Education.

5. 冯德正 completed his PhD at the Multimodal Analysis Lab, National University of Singapore in 2012. He is currently a Research Assistant Professor at the Department of English, The Hong Kong Polytechnic University. His main research area is multimodal discourse analysis in the context of promotional/recreational media (advertising and film) and education (multiliteracies). He has published over a dozen of research articles in international and Chinese journals, such as Journal of Pragmatics, Visual Communication, Semiotica, Review of Cognitive Linguistics, 现代外语,当代语言学,外国语,etc.

6. 张艺琼 is Associate Professor at Guangdong University of Foreign Studies (China), and adjunct researcher at the National Key Research Center for Linguistics & Applied Linguistics at GDUFS. She obtained her PhD degree from the National University of Singapore in 2013. Her research interests include multimodal discourse analysis, multiliteraices, English for Academic Purposes, and cross-cultural studies. Her publications appear in Semiotica, Critical Discourse Studies, Discourse & Communication, etc. She has been invited to lecture on multimodal discourse analysis at Utrecht Summer School 2013, The Netherlands.

7. 郭颂丹 is a PhD candidate and a visiting lecturer of Department of English, The Hong Kong Polytechnic University. Her research interests include language education, material design, literacy development, and multisemiotic studies. Her PhD study aims to explore the Hong Kong primary and secondary textbooks as multi-semiotic resources to scaffold students' multilitercies. She has also been associated with other various research projects on language education in HK, including investigating the usage of clause complex in students' writing, exploring teachers' writing during their in-service teaching training, etc. She has been invited to lecture in Department of Linguistics and English Language of Lancaster University, UK; and English Department of Bremen University, Germany.
